STATEMENT

I'm a painter and printmaker working with a variety of materials and processes. By reframing and highlighting familiar flora and fauna, and everyday environmental scenes, I seek to connect people with the overlooked beauty that surrounds them. I'm inspired by woodland, desert, and suburban elements. I'm also drawn to the juxtaposition of nature and human encroachment, both a literal and emotional intersection. Each morning I create monotypes to set the tone for the day's work. It's become a practice integral to all my other work.
